

Iowa food hubs manage the aggregation, distribution, and marketing of source-identified food products to multiple buyers from multiple producers. Producers served are primarily local and regional. Hubs exist to help these producers satisfy local and regional wholesale, retail, and institutional demand.

Food hubs are divided into three categories:

- ◆ Retail or farm-to-consumer
- ◆ Wholesale or farm-to business/institution (includes distribution)
- ◆ Hybrid (both retail and wholesale)

This statewide food hub directory provides a current list of known food hubs operating in Iowa. We want to keep this list up to date, so please help us identify new food hubs or changes to existing ones.
